CITY OF MALOLOS- Good leadership is now a “superbrand.”

Governor Wilhelmino M. Sy-Alvarado and five other provincial executives became the first recipients of “Outstanding Governorship Awards” given by Superbrands Marketing International (SMI), an award-giving body tasked to celebrate the success of brands worldwide held at Mandarin Hotel, Makati City recently.

Superbrands cited Alvarado for leading Bulacan as “the undisputed most progressive province in the country today.”

Karl Maclean, Chairman of SMI and Harry Tambuatco, SMI President and Chief Executive Officer, said that Gov. Alvarado has been steering the province into unprecedented growth and development through his administration’s “Seven Point Agenda” (Health, Education, Peace and Order, Nature and Environment, Good Governance, Livelihood and History and Culture).

Foremost among the rooster of Alvarado’s achievement as governor of Bulacan is the “Kapitolyo sa Barangay”, where he personally brought the services of the provincial government to various communities including far flung villages.

This initiative has already served more than 295,000 Bulakenyos in 855 community operations.

The Superbrands also cited Alvarado for launching the trendsetting “One Bulacan Pride” or “program for Rapid Industrialization and Development.”

The program is slowly creating new growth corridors in Bulacan that can catapult the province into new heights that could make it, the next premiere province in the country.

The Outstanding Governorship Awards is bestowed on deserving government officials, who, by mandate, are responsible to their constituents. Through that mandate, governors must convey strategic management programs if they are to succeed, the international awards giving body stated.
